A Geographical Bibliography of British Ornithology

HIS work forms a Supplement to or continuation of Mullens and Swann's Bibliography of British Ornithology (Biographical Volume) completed in 1917. It contains the books and articles in that volume arranged under counties, as well as a digest of the enormous mass of published contributions on local avifauna in scientific journals and periodical literature, of which very little indeed had been touched for the Biographical volume above mentioned.

The aim of the authors has been to give as complete as possible an account of the literature and records relating to each county in the British Islands, and the work cannot fail to be of the utmost value to all interested in the avifauna of their particular locality. The preparation of these county bibliographies has involved six years of continuous research and the examination of several thousands of volumes.

The work will, it is hoped, form an important addition to the list of published bibliographies relating to Natural Science. Hitherto the only work dealing solely with the subject has been Elliot Coues's Ornithological Bibliography (Fourth Instalment): being a list of Faunal Publications relating to British Birds. Washington [U.S.A.], 1880.

There are of course bibliographies of General Ornithology such as Engelmann's Bibliotheca Historico-Naturalis, 1846, and the continuation of that work by Carus and Engelmann, and O. Taschenberg: and Strickland's edition of Agassiz, 1848-54. In these, however, the matter relating to British Ornithology is not separated from the rest, while Coues's monograph, admirable as it is, contains many omissions and mistakes, besides stopping some thirty-two years short of the period dealt with by the present work.

It is intended to issue the volume in six parts, which will be sold in sets to subscribers. In part six will be given, in addition to the title, preface, etc., a list of the counties with the names of the ornithologists responsible for the completion and revision of the original rough drafts. Acknowledgment will also be made in the preface of other assistance given.

A GEOGRAPHICAL BIBLIOGRAPHY OF BRITISH ORNITHOLOGY.

PREFATORY NOTE.

The present volume (which must be regarded as the second of our series of Ornithological Bibliographies, the first, "A Bibliography of British Ornithology," having been published in 1917) contains all separate works, articles or notes in periodicals, dealing with local faunas, the previous volume having embraced the biographies of those writers who had published a separate work on British birds, together with a list of their writings, excluding short notes. The only ornithological literature we have not dealt with, therefore, consists of these short notes, when not of a local faunistic nature, and longer articles that have not been written by the author of a separate work or pamphlet on British birds. As regards the assistance rendered us for this volume, this is for the most part acknowledged in the preface to the previous, or in the list of counties in the present volume. Our thanks are also due to all those not especially mentioned by name on whose assistance and help we have been able to rely.

PRESS OPINIONS.

IBIS: "We feel sure that the work, when completed, will prove of the greatest value to all working ornithologists."

AVOCET: "We shall look forward with interest to the succeeding parts of this important work, which should easily become the authoritative book of reference upon British avifauna."

SCIENCE PROGRESS: "... for the first time we find accounts of British birds in all their various plumages from the adult—an enormous undertaking."

FIELD: "What is at once apparent on turning over the pages is the novel plan of figuring in colours the immature plumages of well-known British species."

COUNTRY LIFE: "Eminently practical and valuable guide for the field naturalist."

CONDOR: "About the most thoroughly satisfying book we have yet seen on the birds of any one country."
